April Update from the Provincial Grand Master

Dear Brethren,

I hope that you are all keeping well, finding plenty to do and looking forward to resumption, whenever that is.

Some good news at last, I can now confirm the appointments to and promotions in Grand Rank, which the Grand Master has been pleased to make this year. These were announced recently and it gives me the chance to send my congratulations to the following brethren:

Our Past Assistant Prov.G.M. Provincial D.C. and now VERY W.Bro. Chris Hawkey, has received a promotion to Past Grand Junior Overseer, a well-deserved promotion, as we all know Chris and Sandra have put in many many hours and much effort into Mark Masonry over many years and he totally deserves this promotion. Also, a promotion to Past Grand Senior Deacon to W.Bro Ernie Fisher another well-deserved appointment for Mr DC in the Province. W.Bro's. Martin Lovegrove and Paul Kirkman receive their first appointments to Grand Rank to Past Assistant Grand Director of Ceremonies and my congratulations go to them both, as past Wardens, and current secretaries, again very well deserved. Finally, our hard-working Provincial Treasurer W, Bro Kevin Dower will also receive a first appointment to Past Assistant Grand Sword Bearer another very well-deserved appointment.

I have now been informed by Grand Lodge the June investiture meeting will be abandoned and that providing the September meeting of Grand Lodge can take place the likely intention will be to make the promotions and invest all the first appointments. This will be a super day and I hope that as many of you who are able, will make the journey to London to support our five brethren.

Lastly, I would like all the lodges to begin to consider how we can re-start our meetings again, hopefully by or in September. Look at how many meetings you have missed and clear up any overdue business at a virtual business meeting prior to resumption and think about the candidates you have lined up and plan all work using the Grand Lodge guidelines. I am anticipating that some lodges will want extra meetings, so look at the yearbook and think about dates now, but I ask you to make sure that, although the first face to face meeting of your lodge will probably be a proclamation, you must make it a happy occasion and perhaps consider asking wives and partners to attend an outdoor get together after the meeting, this will enable us all to reconnect with our brethren and family after this terrible time. Also do not rush into an advancement or full Installation ceremony if government guidelines make attendance restricted, we must continue making installing our WM's and Advancing our candidates SPECIAL with full attendance at the meeting if possible.

If you need guidance and advice contact me or the Provincial Secretary.

I wish you all well in the coming weeks, keep in touch, keep well, and stay safe
My very best wishes to you all.

Kevin

Update on the M.B.F. donation to C.P.R. Foodbank

As reported in the January edition of Marking Time, the Mark Benevolent Fund had approved a donation of £30,000.00 following an application by Mount Edgcumbe and St Lukes Lodge No417, to the M.B.F in support of the C.P.R. foodbank, which covers the areas of Camborne, Pool & Redruth. The foodbank alone supports 400 families each month, supplying around 14-16,000 meals, providing crucial support across the area.

We are pleased to report that following a delay, the vehicle has been delivered and is already in use, as soon as restrictions allow, our Provincial Grand Master will make the formal presentation, on behalf of the M.B.F. and the Mark Members of Cornwall.

Grand Lodge News and Announcement of Grand Ranks

Following the previous announcement from Mark Masons' Hall, of the reductions in Annual Dues for members of Mark and Royal Ark Mariner Lodges, the letter below was circulated to all members on the 7th of April. It clearly outlines the intention that the reduction was intended for the benefit of our members and should not be retained by the unit.

Many Lodges have already held Virtual Business Meetings (V.B.M's.) to approve the reduction, should you need any assistance or guidance, please contact the Provincial Grand Secretary whose contact details are on the last page of the newsletter.

7 April 2021

To: Members of All Orders Administered from Mark Masons' Hall

Dear Sir and Brother

Discount on Annual Dues payable in September 2021

At the beginning of February, we announced a further package of financial measures to help our members, which included an extension of the reduction in Registration and Joining Fees first announced last July, and a discount on the Annual Dues to be invoiced in September.

The last twelve months have been a difficult time for us all and the Management Board wanted to acknowledge your loyalty and support as well as contribute to the costs of membership which, for some, may otherwise prove too great in the current circumstances.

So, the discount on Annual Dues which will be made available later this year is intended for the benefit of individual members to whom this saving should be passed directly rather than retained by the Unit for other purposes.

There are grounds for optimism that masonic meetings will be able to resume soon, and the Management Board hopes that the support it has made available to you will enable you to retain your existing memberships and encourage you to look for others who may be interested in extending their research to the Progressive Orders.

With fraternal regards and best wishes.

Spotlight on! Edward the Black Prince Lodge No1680

Edward The Black Prince, No. 1680 under the authority of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England and Wales and Districts and Lodges Overseas and the Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of Cornwall. Date of Warrant 3rd December 1990 and consecrated on 16th March 1991.

On 11th May 1991 at Newquay Tretherras School, the Provincial Grand Lodge meeting was held, and the Deputy Provincial Grand Master reported that the highlights of the year had been the Consecration of Edward the Black Prince Lodge No. 1680. In May 1996, the Provincial Team performed an Advancement Ceremony at Edward The Black Prince and according to Keystone Online Edward The Black Prince has a current membership of 28 and 3 of them have Grand Rank. Amongst the 11 Provincial Officers there is W. Bro Trevor Dawes the current Provincial Grand Senior Deacon. The remaining membership consist of 2 Worshipful Brothers who include the current Worshipful Master and 12 Brothers. 15 of the members were Advanced at Edward The Black Prince and the remaining 13 have all joined the lodge.

As mentioned in all previous Lodge Spotlights, in every Mark lodge the most important assets are its members. When we visit lodges in any Order, we see old friends and new faces. We listen to their meetings and how they may differ from our own. We catch up with friends and learn about those we have not met before. 3 of the Edward The Black Prince Mark Men have taken the time to write a bit about themselves for you to read and enjoy.

WBRO TREVOR S. DAWES Prov.G.S.D.

Born 19 February 1946 in the village of Merther Lane. I attended Merther Lane School which is now the village hall for St Michael Penkivel as well as the home of Roseland Lodge. Aged 11 to 16 years, I was at Truro County Secondary School, affectionately known as Truro Tech situated in Union Place, now Truro County Library.

From school, I joined the RAF initially at Hereford, but saw service in various parts of the UK and overseas. Leaving the RAF in 1974, I settled in Southampton where I was partner in a motor trade and car hire company. During 1981, I sold my share of the business and became Contracts Negotiator for a subsidiary of W H Smith and moved to a village near Basingstoke, where I stayed until taking early retirement and moving back to Cornwall in 1998.

My Masonic career started in March 1995 when Initiated into the Amery Lodge No. 6510 (Alton, Hants). I progressed through all offices, attaining the Chair in 2003. The years between 1998 and 2004 were somewhat arduous with having to make the trip from Cornwall to Alton for each meeting. In the meantime, I had joined Ascot (Berks) Chapter of the HRA.

Not long after moving back to Cornwall I joined Roseland Lodge 8734 and became Master in 2008. I joined Edward the Black Prince Lodge of MMM in 2011. Being a Lodge small in number it did not take long before I became Master. In fact, the offices I held were IG, JO, SO, JW and then W Master where I stayed for two years. I did my year as IPM plus ADC and then to DC. Before I could complete that year along came Covid and like all other Brethren have not been able to participate in Masonry of any form, which meant I was not able to collect my Provincial Honours of Prov.G.S.D. in the normal way. During the lockdown, I have tried to attend as many of the Zoom meetings as possible and have found them both interesting and enjoyable. Sincere thanks to the organisers.

Apart from Mark, I am a member of three Craft Lodges, (Secretary of 3324), two Chapters in which I have been honoured with the position of Provincial Second Grand Principal effective from October this year. St Austell Rose Croix and two Councils of Knight Masons, one of which is in Dublin.

As you can see Masonry is a very big part of my life.

I am married to Sue (some will say long suffering wife!). We have a daughter and a son as well as three grandchildren and now one great-grandson.

Sue and I live in the quiet village of Coombe which according to Estate Agent speak is in the Upper Fal Valley!

That concludes my "potted history". Stay safe everyone and look forward to meeting all the Brethren in the not-too-distant future.

Bro. Bill Truscott

Edward the Black Prince more generally known in house as Edward The Black Prince of Roseland.

15 years ago the lodge was in great difficulties, so Dr Peter Blackwell-Smyth was instrumental in asking the members of Roseland Craft lodge if they would like to join the Mark Degree in Tywardreath to keep the lodge from going under.

Although we are still a small lodge (members 28) we thoroughly enjoy our Mark masonry and are always looking to get more members to join to make Edward the Black Prince even stronger.

Yours Sincerely and Fraternally Bill Truscott.

W. Bro Alan G. Tomkinson PGJD

It was early in 1990, when I was Junior Warden of St. Anne's Lodge number 351 at Looe, that the concept of founding a new Lodge in Lostwithiel was put to the members, to see if there would be enough support to proceed.

The idea was that Lostwithiel, being approximately midway between Looe, Liskeard, Bodmin and St. Austell, which all had Mark Lodges, but with no quick and easy road to any of them, would benefit from a Mark Lodge of its own. If memory serves me correctly, seven of us agreed to be founding members; that number was not enough to proceed. So, the word was put out to see if any members of the surrounding Lodges, might be interested in being founders. Happily, enough support was soon raised. Permission from Province and Lostwithiel Masonic Hall was then sought and received.

There was some discussion about what the name of the new Lodge should be. But, because we were to meet at the 700-year-old, Old Duchy Palace, which had been the administrative centre for Edward the Black Prince, Duke of Cornwall from 1337, the name, "Edward the Black Prince Lodge" became the obvious choice. A warrant from Grand Lodge was applied for, which eventually arrived dated the 3rd of December 1990, but the consecration could not be held until the 16th of March 2091 at the Saltash Masonic Hall.

I remember consecration day as being quite hectic; I loaded my car with a table and tablecloths, salt and a container, and many other things from home and collected two other founders to get to Saltash in time for the rehearsal quite early in the morning. The day passed enjoyably and quickly but, in looking back, it is all rather hazy. I cannot remember what Office I was invested with, but I think it was probably Senior Overseer and Charity Steward as well. Nor can I remember where the Festive Board was held except that it was somewhere near Liskeard.

St. Anne's Lodge now had a second Daughter Lodge; St. Martin's Lodge number 379 at Liskeard being the first. I was appointed Master Overseer in 1992 and, in November of the same year, I was Installed as Worshipful Master of St. Anne's Lodge. I progressed through the Offices of Edward the Black Prince and in 1995, I was Installed as Worshipful Master, at the same time, relinquished the Office of Charity Steward. I was pleased that I was able to propose and perform the Advancement Ceremony for two new recruits to Edward the Black Prince, both members of St. Anne's Craft Lodge number 970.

Soon after I had served my year as Worshipful Master, I was appointed Director of Ceremonies, which position I held, with a break at one point, for several years. I had great fun in that Office; I think I had found my ideal Masonic job!

During this time, the Lodge rent was to be increased very considerably due to the high cost of maintenance to the building; unfortunately to the extent that the Lodge could not bare it. It was therefore proposed that we move to the Masonic Hall at Tywardreath; a bit closer to St. Austell Lodge than we would have wished, but there was little choice. Only one member voted against the move who subsequently resigned. Such a shame!

Because of a change of date for one of our meetings and my commitments to other Lodges and Masonic Orders as well as my workload increasing considerably, in 2014 I was in the position that I could only be reasonably certain of attending the Installation Meeting. Very regretfully, I decided that the only sensible thing to do was to resign from the Lodge. Much to my surprise and delight the Lodge offered me Honorary Membership which I was very pleased to accept.

My twenty-two years as a member of the Lodge had been a happy time; I still try to attend the Installation Meetings whenever possible, and I am delighted to see how it has grown and prospered. I wish the Lodge and all its Members my absolute best wishes for the future.

What's on your mind ?

The following article has been forwarded to me regarding what it is like to suffer from mental health issues. The contributor didn't want to be named and we should respect that. I think it is an amazing insight into something that many of us don't understand or comprehend. Please read it so that in the future we can perhaps be a little more understanding regarding the struggles that some of our members may be going through.

Peter F

A.P.G.M.

Looking after our mental health is now recognised as being as important as our physical health, often one has a direct influence on the other. By raising awareness, we can help break down some of the stigma that exists around mental health so that we all feel more equipped to talk about it and recognise it.

It's not as visual as say a broken bone or the flu. You would offer your sympathy and concern for anyone you knew suffering with something like that, but would you feel able to offer the same to someone struggling with crippling anxiety or depression, even though it's likely no less painful or debilitating?

Someone struggling with their mental health may be unable to ask for help, or even admit they might need to. They may worry people won't understand or take them seriously. Perhaps they have concerns it could have repercussions at work or in their social standing. All of this will only add to their illness causing a cycle that can be hard to break.

So, what is mental illness and how can we spot it?

Mental illness refers to a combination of health conditions that may involve changes in a person's emotions or mood and the way they think or perceive things. It could present as a change in behaviour, affecting their ability to function on a day-to-day basis. They might struggle in a social, work or family environment. It might involve anxiety or depression or be a combination of both. But it could also involve a panic disorder, obsessive compulsive disorder (OCD), post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), eating disorders or one of many other related conditions. There are some wonderful organisations out there where you can find out more information on these and other mental health disorders. Why not take a few moments to find out more. You never know when you, or someone you know will be very grateful you did. Mental illness doesn't discriminate, it can affect anyone.

As it's always good to hear some first-hand stories, I thought I'd share a little of my struggles with you. Some of you might be able to relate to something in my experience or it could help you recognise a potential issue in someone you know and give you an understanding of what they might be going through.

I think of my mind as a library, filled with the stories and experiences of my life. But my library is not an organised one, it has suffered an earthquake and all those books are scattered and thrown about with no sense of order. Fiction rubs up alongside non-fiction in a confusing and utterly chaotic way, so you find it hard to know which is which. At times I start to re-order the books and put them back on the right shelf, but then I might come across something I haven't read in ages and I have to dive straight back into it, even if I know it wasn't a great story first time round and I would really rather not revisit it. Living with that chaos is exhausting. Not physically so much, but mentally. My head simply can't cope with anymore 'noise.' It craves clarity and silence.

My mental illness presents as Generalized Anxiety Disorder. It's a long-term condition that makes you feel anxious about a range of issues and situations rather than one specific event. It causes you to feel anxious most days and makes it difficult to remember the last time you felt totally relaxed. Most of the time I have learned to live with it. A lot of people probably wouldn't be aware, including some close to me, as I've learnt to mask some of the outward symptoms. However, at times of greater stress I may experience panic attacks. When the body goes into full flight or fight mode. Adrenalin and cortisol flood the system, increasing heartrate, you can't breathe, your body shakes, and you feel dizzy. Quite often you feel like you are dying or have an impending sense of doom. They can appear suddenly and without warning. Although sometimes a person familiar with the sensations can feel the attack building and might have learned strategies to help alleviate it. On reflection it is something I have suffered with most of my life. Stemming, I believe, from a form of post-traumatic stress I experienced as a child. I also had OCD tendencies, which occasionally pop up now.

I find that if I have a big social event coming up (not that there have been many of those lately!) I have to mentally prepare myself. I will think about the event, maybe even plan conversations in my head. I will work out escape routes for myself too. Little things I can do to excuse myself from situations if I feel the need to. I do not relax, and I would not say I find it an enjoyable experience on the whole. Lots of people, loud environments, possibly music, all these things can make an anxious mind race. It's worth pointing out, if you know someone who suffers with this form of social anxiety they may take several days after a big event to recover mentally. Their mind will have spent so much time on 'high alert.' They will likely replay the whole event numerous times in their head. All the conversations, interactions and analyse their own behaviour. Hours of pre- and post-event head space can be involved.

By sharing a little part of my story, I hope it might act as a lightbulb moment. When we start to interact with the wider world again, to engage in meetings and social functions, please spare a thought for those members who might find it hard to re-adjust to life outside lockdown. Some may be struggling from the effects of this unprecedented year. Coronavirus has touched us all in very many different ways. But also remember, mental health was important before we had even heard the word Covid and it will be here long after life settles down to a more normal pattern.

Allow people to take their time if they need to. Don't bombard them with invitations and expectations that might overwhelm. Remember, it could be a member's partner who is finding things hard, so don't feel offended if they can't make every social event going. Offer support and ask what you can do to help. By far the greatest thing you can do is to understand. Accept that they aren't doing it to be difficult or to annoy you. Believe me, they would welcome the chance to not feel the way they do. And please don't add a sense of guilt to their already overwhelmed mind. A text, an email a kindly word is usually appreciated, even if the person is not in a position to respond straight away. It's worth noting that for some people this form of communication can be easier than an unplanned telephone call.

Never be afraid to ask for help but also never be afraid to check in on someone. You may be the very thing they need.

Finally, I hope this article hasn't come across as downhearted or gloomy. The last thing any of us needs right now is to have more to worry about. The intention was to help raise awareness. To let some reading this, know they are not alone.

I want to get out there, to enjoy social interaction again, but I know I won't always find it easy, and that's okay.

With this being the thirteenth edition of Marking Time, we hope you have enjoyed the this as well as the previous editions.

We extend our grateful thanks to all those who have contributed over the last year, and look forward to your support as we move forward.
